

2023 Emerging Leader Nomination

The Emerging Leader Award is given to a school librarian who has been working in the profession for five years or less and has already made significant contributions to the school library community. Nominations are accepted from superintendents, principals, teachers, library media staff or community members. Self-nominations are accepted.

- The applicant is a NHSLMA member.
- The nomination will be judged on the accomplishments and ideas the school librarian has demonstrated in developing and supporting the library program and services within the school and the school library community.
- Applicants will be evaluated using a rubric that describes an exemplary new school librarian.
- The winner will be recognized at the NHSLMA conference.
